According to the Roscongress Foundation, the annual turnover of the global halal industry exceeds 2 trillion dollars. In 2024, the market could reach 3.5 trillion dollars. This market is growing rapidly; its growth rate in recent years is not less than 5% per year.

	It is expected that by 2025 the share of halal products will be at least 20% of all products produced in the world. In modern conditions in the Russian economic system, the halal industry is becoming the basis of international cooperation between Russia and the countries of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation. In this regard, it is particularly relevant to study the international experience of standardization and certification of Halal products. Integration of a person into cultural activities allows transmitting this ideology to him/her, to lay down in him/her respect for the history and traditions of his/her country. The spiritual development of citizens, their national self-determination, uniting society, and forming a citizen as an independent thinking and creative person, whose mentality relies on the use of the full potential of national culture. In this regard, the national cinema that responds to both internal ethnic and global cultural challenges becomes relevant. It is important to create high-quality films that will be interesting to the whole world, original, carrying a charge of national mentality and having its own film language. The development of national and ethnic cinema, on the one hand, is a story about the natural, cultural, and industrial features of the region, and on the other hand, is attracting the attention of young people, their involvement in the life of their native land, the popularization of professions, typical to the economy of the region.

Over the last 10 years, the interest in the national cinematography has increased. Films made in Russia's regions by local producers and directors have won awards at Russian and international film festivals and are leading in local releases. Nevertheless, the process of creating and distributing national films has a number of problems. These include new legislation, strategically significant regional events, film commissions, cooperation with film producers (including interregional and federal levels), and professional training (there is a problem of staff shortages and staff turnover in the regions).

4.3 STATE AND BUSINESS IN DIGITAL SECURITY

Organizer: Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Russian Federation.

Accelerated digitalization and widespread adoption of information technology have exacerbated information security issues and created conditions for the emergence of new risks in this area. In the context of the current geopolitical crisis, the ability to implement and maintain critical elements of the IT infrastructure of private and public companies and services based on local solutions and solutions developed by vendors from friendly countries has become the main condition for ensuring digital security. An important factor is the use of solutions from partners that face real-time threats, which are a significant risk for the customer. Russia has faced and continues to face major attacks on key elements of the digital infrastructure while demonstrating the availability of full working domestic solutions to protect military, industrial and civilian elements of the IT infrastructure. In the present circumstances, friendly countries need to strengthen the exchange of positive experiences and practices of countering threats to international information security. What threats to information security do countries face in the current environment? What technological solutions have been developed to protect key elements of the digital infrastructure? What areas of cooperation should Russia develop with friendly countries to ensure digital security?

Experts estimate that trade between Russia and Iran could grow to $40 billion in the next five years. There are prerequisites for increasing cooperation in almost all areas: from agriculture to high-tech, from energy to mechanical engineering, textiles and tourism. Mutual investments, cooperation in special economic zones as well as interregional cooperation offer great potential. Today, in conditions of new foreign economic realities the Russian market opens for friendly countries new opportunities for cooperation. What projects and initiatives can give an impetus to the qualitative development of bilateral relations under new conditions? What areas of business cooperation are in the most demand? What do Russian and Iranian businesses expect from the governments of the two countries to realize the full potential of trade, economic and investment cooperation? Chambers annually launch more than 50 unique projects, which subsequently form the best practices and can be replicated at both the regional and municipal levels. Today, the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Russia almost annually forms best practices in certain areas of activity, which are aimed at developing and improving the activities of chambers of commerce and industry. In 2022, the largest volume of commercial services came to the services in the field of business missions, exhibition and congress activities, education and valuation, as well as the development of new types of expertise. Besides, a large volume is accounted for by other types of services – new projects, which the chambers initiate and launch in the regions. The most interesting of them will be presented by the heads of regional chambers of commerce and industry in the section to which the heads of chambers of commerce and industry, leaders in the development of commercial and introduction of new services, will be invited. Invited moderator: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Shamil Ageev, Chairperson of the Union of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Republic of Tatarstan. Invited guests: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Vladimir Katenev, President of St. Petersburg Chamber of Commerce and Industry; ▪ Andrey Besedin, President of Urals Chamber of Commerce and Industry; ▪ Denis Frantsuzov, President, Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Moscow Oblast; ▪ Vitaly Lotshekhin, President, Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Arkhangelsk region; ▪ Maxim Kostarev, President of Tomsk Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

One of the key tasks of the city authorities is to introduce technological solutions to create a reserve capacity of transport infrastructure, taking into account the growing load. The use of intelligent transport systems allows making balanced management decisions and prioritize the construction and repair of the road network, which provides significant budget savings. What are

WHAT OPPORTUNITIES DOES THE INNOVATION INFRASTRUCTURE OFFER TO STARTUPS? Organizer: The Skolkovo Foundation. Global markets are experiencing turbulent times, with heightened uncertainty and fierce constraints requiring rapid response and adaptability. However, the crisis always brings with it prospects as well: the falling out of technology solutions in the global market opens windows of opportunity. Russian companies are actively searching for new profitable niches. The potential of cooperation with OIC countries is now more than ever revealing. In this regard, one of the key directions of work for domestic companies is the expansion of cooperation with countries and international organizations of the Islamic world. The desire to expand its influence, develop products and solutions, increase profits, and capture new markets – all this requires a competent change in investment strategy, understanding of the differences between foreign markets and Russian, as well as a combination of infrastructure and technological tools to support business. Development institutions become the pivot around which the scientific potential, entrepreneurial efforts and capital are consolidated. How does the Skolkovo Foundation support its projects when entering foreign markets and what barriers does it help to overcome? What kind of assistance is provided to projects when they enter the OIS markets? What services and support do startups need most? How can businesses quickly respond to today's challenges and scale up?

Not long ago, few imagined that we would see unmanned cars on the roads and swarms of drones in the sky. Many industries already find it hard to imagine working without the use of drones. The necessity and relevance of developing driverless technology are also confirmed at the present stage, so the issue of further development and testing is acute. One of the main problems is how to ensure safety and interaction with other traffic participants. Today, experiments with drones have come out of closed testing areas and are being conducted on public roads, which requires the development of intelligent road infrastructure, as well as solving the issues of legal regulation of unmanned vehicles. Is it realistic to provide efficient and safe drone service in transportation logistics? What unmanned transport solutions have been developed at KAMAZ? How is unmanned transport being implemented in China? Invited moderators: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Sultan Zhankaziev, President of the Association of Transport Engineers, Doctor of Engineering Science, Professor of the Moscow State Automobile and Road Construction Technical University, Head of the Department "Traffic Organization and Safety"; ▪ Rifkat Minnikhanov, Doctor of Technical Sciences, Chairperson of the Council of the Association for Digital Development Assistance, Director of the State Budgetary Institution "Road Safety", Head of the Department "Intellectual Transport Systems" of Kazan National Research Technical University named after A. 8.1 INTERNATIONAL INDUSTRIAL COOPERATION IN AN ERA OF CHANGE. THROUGH CHALLENGES TO NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Organizer: Ministry of Industry and Trade of Russian Federation.

The changed geopolitical situation has led to a global restructuring not only of cooperation and logistics chains but also prompted a rethinking of international economic models and a reorientation of the Russian Federation's business relations towards friendly states, both traditional Russian partners and prospective countries. Mechanisms of support for Russian foreign trade activities were promptly fine-tuned by the Ministry of Industry and Trade of the Russian Federation and the Russian Export Centre in terms of simplifying support for exporters to implement international projects, obligations were introduced, and financial support for the national project "International Cooperation and Export" was targeted to the most in-demand measures.

Despite the imposed external restrictions, it was possible not only to maintain the functionality of the existing export support infrastructure but also to form a new line of services for exporters, aimed both at helping them to develop friendly markets and to assist priority imports needed to support production processes at enterprises. What role did the countries of the Islamic world play in the reorientation of foreign trade? What can Russia offer its partners abroad? What foreign goods and services can be in demand in the Russian market? RUSSIA – EAST: LOGISTICS, IMPORT-EXPORT Organizer: Permanent Mission of the Russian Federation to the Organization of Islamic Cooperation. The market of foreign economic activity and logistics services is now undergoing an enormous transformation. Unresolved problems accumulated during the pandemic have been superimposed on the unprecedented sanctions imposed on Russia. As a result, the skies of Western countries have closed to Russian aircraft, the global sea carriers Maersk, MSC, and CMA CGM have left the Russian market, and the largest courier companies DHL, Fedex TNT, and UPS have ceased operations. Restrictions on the movement of cargo have led to a global realignment of delivery routes. In the light of the current geopolitical stalemate, the International Transport Corridor “North – South” (ITC “North – South”) claims to be almost the main trade artery for Russia, and experts note not only its economic necessity but also its strategic importance. International Integration Club “North – South” is an authoritative platform in Russia to discuss projects within ITC “North – South”. The main mission of the Club is to unite authorities and business resources of the member countries of the international project, as well as partner countries in the dialogue, mutual information and analysis of preparation of investment agreements. How the development of ITC “North - South” affects the development of the economy and export logistics of Greater Eurasia? What is the role of the Russian Federation, India and Iran in the development of ITC “North-South”? International Transport Corridor (ITC) is an economic corridor, the main elements of which are economic Centres of the regions that form regional and foreign trade turnover, large industrial clusters and special economic zones. The modern system of international economic relations is undergoing a tectonic shift. The model of world economic relations, based on the principles of liberalism and multilateral agreements in the framework of the World Trade Organization, which has been formed in recent decades, played a positive role in the development of the world economy at a certain stage, but today has revealed its weaknesses. Together they can form a new matrix of international economic relations, harmonizing the world order. What is the role of interstate, public and educational institutions in establishing a multilateral partnership between Russia and Muslim countries? 13:00-14:20 International Cooperation Hall Halls 3-4	1.1.7 RUSSIA – EGYPT Organizer: Ministry of Economic Development of the Russian Federation. The changing system of international relations and the confrontation between the West and Russia are forcing the latter to change the geography of economic relations and the structure of supply chains. In Africa, the Arab Republic of Egypt is a reference country for the Russian Federation in the context of the restructuring of foreign economic relations. In addition to the large nuclear power project to build the El Dabaa Nuclear Power Plant worth $30 billion, Egypt imports large quantities of nuclear fuel. Egypt imports large amounts of grain (more than 5 million tons per year, $1.8 billion) and railway equipment (1,300 passenger cars worth 1 billion euros). Cooperation has even broader prospects in the context of projects to create a Russian industrial zone, a grain hub in the Suez Economic Zone, and the introduction of mutual settlements in national currencies. Egypt is a potential “gateway to Africa” for Russian business, as it is linked to the continent through integration agreements on preferential trade terms, and is also of interest as a geographically convenient channel for parallel imports from Europe and re-exports in the opposite direction. What prospects and opportunities do Russia and Egypt have for developing joint cooperation? What are the prospects for the development of financial and banking cooperation between the countries? What is the practical stage of implementation of the Russian industrial zone in the Arab Republic of Egypt? What are the potential points of growth in the joint cooperation of Russian and Egyptian businesses? Invited moderator: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Amr Abdel Hamid, General Director of TEN TV Channel. Invited speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Alexey Tevanyan, Trade Representative of the Russian Federation in the Arab Republic of Egypt; ▪ Nazih Naggari, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Arab Republic of Egypt to the Russian Federation;

Under the current global transformation of global trade chains, food security, banking cooperation, and tourism are among the most important areas of trade and economic cooperation between Russia and Indonesia. At the same time, halal becomes a necessary parameter for trade in goods and services with Indonesian partners. What prospects and opportunities do the countries have for increasing food trade? 2.5.1 BREAKING STEREOTYPES: THE RUSSIAN ECONOMY IN THE SANCTIONS REALITY

The Russian economy adapted quickly to last year's sanctions shocks: redirecting trade flows, ensuring continuity of payments, and maintaining macroeconomic stability. How can the landscape of sanctions pressure change? How can the geography of foreign trade be restructured without becoming overly dependent on new partners? What will the payment infrastructure look like? How difficult is the task of forming one's own ecosystem to create innovations and import substitution technologies?

3.6 DRIVERS FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF RUSSIAN AIC EXPORT: HALAL PRODUCTS

Organizer: Ministry of Agriculture of the Russian Federation, FGBU Agroexport, Federal Accreditation Service, Rosstandart, REC, Ministry of Agriculture of the Republic of Tatarstan.

Currently, about 25% of the world's population are Muslims. 60% of them are young people under 30 years old – the driving force behind the demand for halal agricultural products. By 2050 the proportion of Muslims is expected to increase to 35%, and welfare-high growth rates ensure the growth of Muslim consumer spending by 7-10% annually.

The main share of Russian halal exports was meat products and confectionery products. Russian agricultural products are also widely represented in the market of OIC countries and are increasingly gaining interest among non-Muslim states.

Meat products have special potential for export development. The meat industry is actively developing in Russia. In addition, we have about 20 million Muslims, which creates a domestic demand for halal meat. It is produced up to 10% of the total production of poultry, beef, and lamb.

However, to increase Russian exports of products according to Halal standards, it is necessary to deal closely with the promotion, which should be based on the system of national certification and the image of this system. Tools required for the quality of the certification system: traceability, the availability of certification bodies within the country.

Moreover, the promotion of halal products can get an additional impetus by creating a national umbrella brand. This will increase the awareness of foreign consumers of Russian products and the formation of a sustainable positive image of Russia as a food producer.
